

LPIRG is a student-funded, student-directed, not-for-profit organization providing resources for students to engage with environmental and social justice issues.

LPIRG provides funding, administrative assistance, meeting and storage space, and information resources to students who have projects that are in the public interest.

Funding can be accessed for:

- Research
- Special Events or Projects
- Working Groups (collectives of students and possibly community members who work together on a public interest issue. Groups may focus on research, events, action, publications, or other activities, and have long-term goals.)
